REPORT 1944.

In presenting their Report for the year ended 31st December, 1944, the Council, as in previous years, would rely on its being understood that its compilation in abbreviated form is due to the continuance of the urgent necessity for economy both in finance and paper.

The Hospital has suffered severe loss during the year by the deaths of Lord Moyne, Sir Humphry Rolleston and Sir Cuthbert Wallace, all of whom were members of the Council. Lord Moyne had been a Trustee of the Radium Institute since its commencement and was an original member of the Council of the present Association. Until such time as his public duties precluded it he was a Deputy Chairman of the Council and maintained throughout the keenest interest in its affairs. Sir Humphry Rolleston was also an original member of the Council and had been a member of the Committee of the Radium Institute. His enlightened interest and wide experience were always available to the Council. Sir Cuthbert Wallace had for many years been the Director of Medical Services and Research and maintained these activities in an honorary capacity after becoming a member of the Council in July, 1941. The services he rendered to the Hospital were invaluable and contributed in large measure to the comprehensive scheme of activities, and particularly in the direction of research, which characterizes it. The loss of these members is deeply felt and regretted.

A review of the activities of the Hospital during five years of war cannot fail to establish that during that time it has played a leading part in meeting the requirements of the Emergency Medical Service of the Country. These have been of a diverse, far reaching and at times unforeseen character and the Council gratefully realise that its peace-time foundation has been such as to enable it at the shortest notice to subscribe to the needs of a national emergency of unprecedented severity. This work is going on and will continue so long as the situation demands it but the Hospital has never ceased to carry on its basic work of the treatment of cancer and its attendant research. The paramount importance of this will be realised in the light of the Cancer Act 1939, and the Council have for some time been earnestly considering the best means of placing the Hospital in a position to meet the requirements envisaged in the Act.

— It will be observed from the Statistical Tables on p. 19 that whilst the number of In-patients admitted during the year shows a small decrease compared with 1943, the number of days each patient was resident was greater, resulting in the average number of occupied beds for the year being almost the same as in 1943.

The decrease in admissions was due to the fact that on several occasions during the year many patients were evacuated from the Hospital to allow convoys of wounded service patients to be received, and to a regrettable outbreak of smallpox which occurred in the Hospital early in March, and prevented patients being admitted for several weeks.

In addition to dealing with over 2,400 service cases the Hospital was made a Centre for the reception of wounded civilians from the battle areas, and under this arrangement 156 patients of almost every European nationality were admitted after D-Day.

As indicated above, the Hospital's normal function of treating patients suffering from Cancer has proceeded without interruption during the year and 700 such cases have been dealt with in the Wards retained by the Hospital for its own cases.

In addition over 1,000 In-patients were admitted to the Radiotherapy Centre established at the Hospital at the request of the Ministry of Health in 1942.

The Physio-therapy and Occupational Therapy Departments have worked to capacity throughout the year and have proved a real asset to the Hospital.

During the year the Ministry of Health White Paper on "A National Health Service" has been issued and it need hardly be stated that it has been received and studied with the keenest interest by the Hospital world. The voluntary Hospitals are single-minded in their desire to assist in providing a comprehensive hospital service, but they feel that there are certain principles inherent in the voluntary system which must at all costs be preserved. These have been and still are the subject of emphatic representations in the proper quarters and the Council have co-operated to the fullest extent possible to them in efforts to secure that the voluntary spirit shall not be impaired.

The study of cancer throughout the country, despite the war, is being pursued with ever increasing intensity and the research departments of the Hospital are being kept abreast of and are sharing in the progress that is being made in this direction. It is a costly matter but of imperative necessity to cancer research, and the Council have not allowed the financial position to stand in the way. Donations ear-marked to the Research Fund are regularly being received but the expenditure under this head is very great and further financial assistance is much needed.

The lease of the Riding House Street premises has been advantageously sold during the year as it was desired to obtain as soon as possible premises more suitable to the requirements of the Hospital under the amalgamation. The Council remain as tenants of a part of the same premises for the time being and the facilities for the Out-patient and Follow Up Departments thus remain as hitherto in London. This is a matter of much advantage to patients, especially under present conditions when the difficulties of travel have become still more acute.

The Statement of Accounts will be found on pp 14A—18 and special attention is drawn to the Balance Sheet, from which it will be seen that the Hospital owes its Bankers £10,000. This amount was considerably larger at the commencement of the year of account, but part of the proceeds of the sale of the Riding House Street premises has been applied to its reduction and it will be necessary, when other premises become available, to make further capital expenditure in this direction of a substantial nature. The Council are most anxious completely to repay the loan by Bankers so that the interest chargeable thereon may be applied to more profitable purposes and they earnestly invite the sympathetic consideration of their supporters.

The Council once more tender their heartfelt thanks to all those who by individual gifts have co-operated with them in the financial administration of the Hospital. These include many who have maintained their support for a long number of years and it is a source of much encouragement that despite the stringency of the war years this should be the case.

Throughout the war the Joint Committee of the British Red Cross and Order of St. John have rendered the greatest possible assistance to the Hospital in meeting a variety of demands, sometimes of an emergency character. This has been particularly so during the year and the warmest thanks are due to the Joint Committee for their powerful co-operation.

The Hospital has been honoured during the year by a visit from Queen Wilhelmina of the Netherlands.

The stress that is being laid on cancer research work throughout the Country has already been referred to. The British Empire Cancer Campaign is inseparable from this and has once more contributed generously to the research funds of the Hospital. This support has been maintained for many years and the Council tender to the Campaign this expression of their deep gratitude not only for their financial gifts but for their enlightened and practical interest throughout.

To King Edward's Hospital Fund for London a deep debt of gratitude is due for the renewal this year of their grant of £2000. It is especially valued under the special conditions of the times which render it imperative that the Hospital should raise the highest possible sum by voluntary gifts.

The Metropolitan Hospital Sunday Fund have also continued the support which they have hitherto consistently afforded and the Council gratefully acknowledge their grant of £400 for the year of account.

The Hospitals Day Collection for some years now has shown an increased financial result. The previous year's amount was a record but a new record has been set up during 1944. This is due to the devotion of our Matron, Miss Sanderson, and the Council take this opportunity of publicly tendering to her their heartfelt thanks not only for her organisation of the Collection but for her signally successful efforts in raising for the Hospital other funds which have contributed to the welfare of the patients and the happiness of the staff.

It will be gratefully noted that there is on foot a scheme for the endowment of a bed by the Hospital Nursing Staff. The target of £1000 required for this is within measureable distance although the fund has been in existence only for a limited period and it is hoped very shortly to achieve the desired result.

The Council regret that owing to the necessity already referred to for curtailing for the time being the Annual Report it is not possible to record in detail all the gifts that have been made to the Hospital and they would again rely on its being understood that each gift, whether in money, in kind or in services rendered has been received with deep gratitude and and appreciated by all concerned.

Forms of Bequest and of Seven Years Deed of Covenant respectively are embodied in this Report and the special attention of the friends of the Hospital is invited to them. A list of legacies received during recent years will be found on page 20. The benefit to the Hospital of the completion of a Deed of Covenant is especially stressed at this moment as with the standard rate of Income Tax at 10/- in the £, the repayment by the Inland Revenue authorities of the tax results in the cash value to the Hospital of a subscription made under such a Deed being doubled without any additional payment by the donor.

Once more the members of the Council desire to place on record their appreciation of the work of their Medical and Administrative staffs; War conditions continue to make things difficult, but the cheerful efforts of all concerned have not failed to tackle them with splendid energy and courage—our gratitude to them is very real.

DONOUGHMORE.

The Council would take the opportunity which this Report affords of placing on record their sincere regret at the death on the 7th March, 1945, of the Viscount Dawson of Penn. Lord Dawson was a member of the Committee of the Radium Institute until the amalgamation and then became an original member of the Council of the new body. Despite the many and imperative calls upon his time he took a pointed interest in the affairs of the Hospital and the benefit of his wide experience and keen insight was always available to the Council. His loss is severely felt and his memory held in gratitude.
